Skiing for a Difference: Julia James goes the distance for TLC

After over four hours, 30 kilometres, and sub-zero temperatures, Julia James has done it! She has completed her X-country Ski Marathon for Positive Change, and become a TLC Community Action Hero!

As a certified life coach from Vancouver, Julia recently decided to train for and finish her first cross country skiing marathon. Why? She wanted a personal challenge, but also wanted to promote three of her favourite charities, including TLC, in a unique way. "I chose TLC because of the collaborative and inclusive approach to reach your goals of conservation of natural and historic sites" says Julia. TLC was highlighted on Julia's website and many donations were received in honour of her amazing feat.

You too can take the reins and save some of BC's most special places by becoming a Community Action Hero like Julia! Help us build community spirit and raise awareness for TLC's work through a community event of your own design. If ski marathons aren't your thing, become a hero with a bake sale, bottle drive, or bike-a-thon...take action your way!

So get out there and become a Hero today! Just be sure to send us your stories and photos, and you too might appear in a future issue of the LandMark!
